CET PAPER 2006

Directions (1 TO 5): Below is given passage followed by several possible inferences which can be drawn from the facts state in the passage. You have to-examine each inference separately in the context of the passage and decide upon its degree of truth or falsity.

Mark answer (a) if the inference is "definitely true" i. e. it properly follows from the statement of fact given.

Mark answer (b) if the inference is "probably true" though not "definitely true" in the light of other fact given.

Mark answer (c) if the data are inadequate i.e. from the facts given you cannot say whether the inference is likely to be true or false. /

Mark answer (d) if the inference is "probably false" though not "definitely false" in the light of the fact given.

Mark answer (e) if the inference is "definitely false" i.e. it cannot possibly be drawn from the facts given or it. contradicts the given facts.

Sub-Saharan Africa whose GDP grew at less than 3% a year through entire 1990s grew 5 J % in 2004 and at 5.2% in 2005 and is projected to grow at 5.6% in the fiscal year ending 2006. In other words, India is growing about 1.5% a year faster than Sub-Saharan Africa. If India is merely doing somewhat better than the worst performing region in the world, there is no reason to get euphoric. Why is the world economy faring so well that even the worst historical performers are suddenly looking good? Africans are the fragments of the former Soviet Union are patting themselves on the back for reforming and becoming efficient. The world economy has hit 'a gold patch, and rising global tides has lifted all boats, even most pitiful ones. India has benefited from the rising tide like all others. But it is illusory to think that policies and projects will always keep improving.

1. India's projected economic growth for the current fiscal year is around 7%.
2. India's economy is way above the perennially low performing countries in the world.
3. Indian economy may be above to sustain present rate of growth in the coming years without major changes in its economic policies.
4. In the past, world economy has never grown at .the present rate.
5. Average Economic growth of breakaway Soviet Republics is about 6% at present.

Mark answer :(E) if you think the inference is 'definitely false' i.e., it cannot possibly be drawn from the facts given or it contradicts the given facts

Now, read the following passage and the inferences given below them and mark your answers on the separate answer sheet.

The serious accident in which a person was run down by a car yesterday has again focused attention on the most unsatisfactory state of street lighting. No one expects side roads to be provided with the same standard of lighting as a main road, but unless the "council is prepared to make good its promise as regards road lighting, it will only be a question of time before there are further and perhaps fatal accidents.

1. It seems that the council has promised to improve the state of lighting on side roads.

2. Several accidents have so far taken place because of unsatisfactory lighting.'

3. The accident that occurred was fatal.

4. The accident occurred at night.

5. There will not be a single accident on roads if they are satisfactorily illuminated.

Directions (14 - 16) Study the following information carefully and answer the questions given below:

The search for safe investment avenues offering regular income begins as one approaches the retirement age. Schemes that offer capital appreciation coupled with security are the most desired. Being guided by such a principle, the Government of India had announced a special scheme in 2004 to cater to such needs of senior citizens. In a short span it became very popular with people, however, attractive rates on bank fixed deposits last year overshadowed the scheme. Now, with falling deposit rates, the scheme could make it to the limelight again.

14.Which of the following is a conclusion which can be made from the above paragraph?

- A. At a younger age people do not worry about assured returns on their investments.
- B. Govt. desires to help senior citizens earn regular returns on their investments.
- C. Investments in primary markets are not so popular among Indians.
- D. Banks are likely to increase the rates on deposits
- E. None of these

15.Which of the following is an assumption which is implicit in the above paragraph?

- A. After retirement people may settle for regular income on their investments in lieu of their salaries.
- B. People generally start investing close to their retirement age.
- C. Bank deposits always provide higher interest rates
- D. Till 2004, the interest rates on bank deposits were high.
- E. None of these

16.Which of the following is, an inference which can be drawn from the above paragraph?

- A. The Govt. of India did not announce any deposit scheme prior to 2004.
- B. People did not invest in the special scheme of Govt. of India till very recently.
- C. Senior citizens receive higher interest rates from banks.
- D. Deposit schemes which cater to appreciation of investments with very little risk of failure attract people nearing their retirement age.
- E. None of these

Directions (17- 20) Study the following information carefully and answer the questions given below:

Indian wheat products are finding no takers in the global market because of the high domestic prices. Only 35,000 tonnes of wheat products have been exported against 6,50,000 tonnes allowed for exports. Wholesale wheat prices were at least Rs, 2,000/- per tonne higher than the global prices. In June last year, the government had removed the two-year old export ban on wheat products in order to clear out warehouses which made way for the new crop. States have also been slow at picking up wheat sold by the centre under the open market scheme because of the high prices, but the food ministry has been hamstrung because it cannot afford to sell at lower than procurement price.

17. Which of the following is an assumption which is implicit in the above paragraph?

Directions (1 to 2) Read the following paragraph and answer the question which follows.

The hit and run cases are up 30 per cent from last year. The fault lies entirely with our judicial system. The court proceedings take very long to come to any conclusion. The sentences too are so lenient that traffic rule violators do not fear a long term imprisonment.

1.Which of the following would most appropriately weaken the argument regarding failure of the judicial system presented in the given paragraph?

- A. No action has been taken lately to speed up the legal battle in hit and run cases
- B. Number of cases of hit and run are substantially lower in other parts of the world
- C. The sentences for hit and run cases amount to a maximum of only one year imprisonment
- D. Separate tablet courts were formed by the higher court about a decade ago to deal exclusively with the hit and run cases with the main objective of expediting and dealing firmly with such cases
- E. None of these

2. Read the following paragraph and answer the question which follows.

Trucks carrying load of more than 10 tonnes are not allowed to run in the city roads from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. These trucks can run on the highways which are outside city limits. Taking highways rather than city roads, however, means that these trucks have to travel a minimum of ten kilometres extra as compared to city roads.

- 2.Which of the following can be inferred from the given paragraph?
- A. After 10 p.m., there are more trucks than cars on the city roads
  - B. Cars are not allowed to run on the highways between 8 a.m. to 10 p.m.
  - C. Trucks carrying more than 10 tonnes of weight cause more traffic inconvenience than the ones carrying lesser load
  - D. It is as convenient for the trucks to run on highways as on the city roads
  - E. Most truck drivers would prefer to drive on the highways rather than city roads as the highways do not have regular city traffic such as cars and buses.

As ocean levels rise, erosion {157} on the shore. As wetlands depend on solid ground for cattails and other aquatic plants to grow, the removal of earth can be devastating. Researchers suggest that by 2080 almost 33% of wetlands will be {158} into open water. Most aquatic animal and plant species are highly {159} to salinity levels in their water. As sea levels rise, they flood low-lying freshwater marshes and lakes, making them partially saline. This can kill and {160} many native species. The Florida Everglades, for example, are in danger of become salty due to the encroachment of the Atlantic Ocean. This would devastate the rich plant and animal life of the Everglades.

READING COMPREHENSION

CET PAPER 2006

(Q.1-9) Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions given below it. Certain words/phrases have been printed in bold to help you locate them while answering some of the questions .:

Amartya Sen wrote about the Indian tradition of scepticism and heterodoxy of opinion that led to high levels of intellectual argument. The power sector in India is a victim of this, tradition at its worst. Instead of forcefully communicating, supporting and honestly and firmly implementing policies, people just debate them. It is argued that central undertakings produce power at lower tariffs and must therefore build most of the required extra capacities. This is a 'delusion. They no longer have access to low-cost government funds.

Uncertainty about payment remains a reason for the hesitation of private Investment. They had to sell only to SEBs (State Electricity Boards). SEB balance sheets are Cleaner after the "securitisation" of the Rs. 40,000 crore or so owed by SEBs to central government undertakings. Now shown as debt instruments. But state governments have not Implemented agreed plans to ensure repayment when due. The current annual losses of around Rs. 28,000 crore make repayment highly uncertain. The central undertakings that are their main suppliers have payment security because the government will come to their help. Private enterprises do not have such assurance and are concerned about payment security, that must be resolved.

By the late, 1990s, improving the SEB finances was recognized, as fundamental to power reform. Unbundling SEBs, working under corporate discipline and even privatization and not vertically integrated state enterprises, are necessary for efficient and financially viable electricity enterprises. Since government will not distance itself from managing them, privatizing is an option. The Delhi model has worked. But it receives no public support.

The Electricity Act 2003, the APRDP (Accelerated Power Reform and Development Programme) with its incentives and penalties, and the creation of independent regulatory commissions, were the means to bring about reforms to improve financial viability of power sector. Implementation has been half-hearted and results disappointing. The concurrent nature of electricity in the Constitution impedes power sector improvement. States are more responsive to populist pressures than the central government, and less inclined to take drastic action against electricity thieves.

Captive power would add significantly to capacity. However, captive generation, three years after the Act enabled it, has added little to capacity because rules for open access were delayed. Redefined captive generation avoids state vetoes on purchase or sale of electricity except to state electricity enterprises. Mandating open access on state owned wires to power regardless of ownership and customer would encourage electricity trading. The Act recognized electricity trading as a separate activity. A surcharge on transmission charges will pay for cross-subsidies. These were to be eliminated in time. Rules for open access and the quantum of surcharge by each state commission (under broad principles defined by the central commission) have yet to be announced by some. The few who have announced the surcharge have kept it so high that no trading can take place.

1.The example of "Delhi Model" quoted by the author underlines his feelings of-

- I. happiness about its Success.
  - 2.unhappiness for lack of public support.

CET PAPER 2007

(Qs, No. 1 TO 10 ): Read the following passage carefully and answer some of the questions.

In modern times Abraham Lincoln stands as the model of a compassionate statesman. He showed this quality not only in' striving for the emancipation of the American blacks but in the dignity with which he conducted the American Civil War .

Lincoln did not fancy himself as a liberator. He thought it would be better for all if emancipation was a gradual process spread over many years. he proposed compensation for slave-owners in US bonds and grants for the rehabilitation of blacks- 'colonisation' as he called it. But fate was to deem otherwise. The haste with which the South wanted to break way from the union with the North, compelled him to move 'faster than he expected. Perhaps more than most men of his time he had thought through the issue of slavery. "We must free the slaves', he said, 'or be ourselves subdued'. Before reading his first draft of the Proclamation of Emancipation, he told his colleagues, In giving freedom to the slaves, we assure freedom to the free.'

On September 22, 1862, Lincoln set his hand on the Proclamation of Emancipation declaring that on the first day of January 1863, all persons held as slaves within any State 'shall be then, and forever free'.

Lincoln's revulsion for slavery left him without any moral indignation or passion against the slave-owners. The guilt of the slave-owners, he felt, should be shared by the whole country-the North and the South, for it seemed to him that everyone in the nation was an accomplice in perpetuating that system. To have whipped up any hatred against slave-owners would, to him, have been an act of malice.

'I shall do nothing in malice', he wrote, 'what I deal with is too vast for malicious dealing.' As the Civil War was coming to a successful conclusion, a Northerner demanded of Lincoln: 'Mr. President, how are you going to treat the Southerners when the war is over?' Lincoln replied: 'As if they never went to war.' When the news came of the victory of the Northern against the Confederate forces, someone suggested that the head of the Confederation Administration, Jefferson Davies, really ought to be hanged. 'Judge not, that ye be not judged.' Lincoln replied. As to the demand for the prosecution of rebels, Lincoln

Direction for Q. No. 1 TO 9 : Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions given below it. Certain words have been printed in bold to help you locate them while answering some of the questions.

The Prime Minister's recent trip to Nigeria, the first bilateral prime ministerial visit to Africa since Jawaharlal Nehru's 45 years ago, recalls a long neglected Indian obligation. "It is up to Asia to help Africa to the best or her ability," Nehru told the Bandung Conference in 1955, "because we are sister continents." The Prime Minister's proposed strategic partnership with African nations might at last make good that 52-year old promise and also, perhaps, challenge China's expedient diplomacy. In the intervening years, the West's sanctimonious boycott of many African regimes-after nearly a century of extreme colonial exploitation-left the continent in the grip of oppressive rulers looking for new political sponsors, arms-sellers and trading partners. Not only was it an abdication of the developed world's responsibility to the world's least developed region, sanctions actually compounded the sufferings of poorer Africans. The Darfur killings continue and there is no mellowing of Robert Mugabe's repression in Zimbabwe.

Abandoned by the West, Africa looked elsewhere. Beijing filled the vacuum by eagerly embracing dangerous and unsavoury regimes in its search for oil and other minerals. China demonstrated its influence by playing host to 48 out of 53 African leaders a year ago in a jamboree that was historic as well as historical. Historic because China has succeeded in becoming the pre-eminent outside power in Africa and its second biggest trading partner. Historical because modern Chinese diplomacy draws on the Middle Kingdom's ancient formula: the tribute system. It was how the Son of Heaven brought those nations whom the Celestial Empire called "barbarians" into his imperial trading and, through it, cultural and political system. Contemporary China's economic penetration of Africa also heralds a new era of cultural and political ties though the Chinese foreign ministry repeatedly assures the world that "our cooperation is not designed to be against or preclude any third party." This is untrue in a world of finite resources.

Once the Chinese are established in a country, no one else gets a foothold; Myanmar, where India failed to obtain the desired gas concessions, is a prime example. Aware that the hunt for energy is a zero-sum game, China's leadership courts African leaders with regular visits and substantial grants. After decades of neglect-Vajpayee's Africa visit over a decade ago was to attend a Commonwealth ' Summit-India will have to move cautiously but quickly if it is to break China's monopoly. Along with investing in Africa's human capital. China has outlined a strategic investment plan to build three to five trade economic cooperation zones in Africa by 2009 to boost trade, which is expected to tap $40billion this year. That could double to $30 billion by 2010 on the back of an insatiable demand for natural resources to feed China's booming economy.

1. What was Jawaharlal Nehru's consideration for helping African nations?

- A. The people in the continent were extremely backward

Urbanization and altered lifestyles are indicators of socio-economic development and lead to risk factors for cardiovascular diseases CVDs. At present, pre-transitional diseases like rheumatic heart disease, mostly the problem of the poor, co-exist as a major cardiovascular disease along with post-transitional diseases such as coronary heart disease and hypertension. In India nearly 2.4 million deaths are caused by cardiovascular disorders. Small-scale community-based studies indicate the prevalence of CVD in adults, ranging from 2-6 per cent in rural and 6-10 per cent in urban areas. The health sector review of the World Bank projects that CVD mortality rates would double between 1985-2015.

CET PAPER 2010

Directions (1-15) Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions given below it. Certain words/phrases have been printed in bold to help you locate them while answering some of the questions.

Internationally comparable data on the migration of the highly skilled is incomplete, but sources confirm an increase in migration flows during the 1990s, from Asia to the United States, Canada, Australia and the United Kingdom. The increase comes from strong demand in DECD countries for IT.

and other skills in science and technology as well as the selective immigration policies that favour skilled workers. Not all skilled migrants are in search of educational, economic or intellectual opportunities. Sometimes, they are forced to leave their homes as a result of war, or political, ethnic and religious persecution.

Skilled migration between DECD countries is also on the rise but appears dominated by temporary flows of advanced students, researchers, managers and IT specialists, suggesting more a pattern of brain circulation than a draining of skills from one place to another.

The United States is the main pole of attraction for foreign skilled workers; 40% of its foreign-born adult population has tertiary level education. But the United States is not the only magnet. Canada also attracts talent and, despite its modest loss of skilled migrants to the US, is in fact a net importer of human capital. Skilled migration to Germany and France has been lower in recent history, but these countries have now implemented policies to attract foreign students, researchers and IT workers.

The costs and benefits of brain drain and circulation of talent are highly debated. International mobility of skilled workers can generate global benefits by improving knowledge flows and satisfying the demand for skills. The contribution of foreign skilled workers to economic growth and achievement in host countries, in particular to research, innovation and entrepreneurship, is increasingly recognized. But, it is important to distinguish between emigrants from OECD countries and those from developing countries.

In home countries in the developing world, the challenge is greater. For these countries, capturing benefits mostly depends on attracting back skilled emigrants and providing opportunities for them to use their new technological competencies. Returnees also can bring valuable management experience, entrepreneurial skills and access to global networks. They may even bring venture capital. But this is looking on' the bright side. Mostly, the problems caused by the brain drain in poorer countries are great. Migrants from developing countries are generally more likely to stay in the host country than migrants from advanced countries. In the longer run, however, return flows of people and capital may not only offset some potential negative effects of international migration but also constitute an economic development strategy in its own right.

The harsh reality is that only a handful of countries have been successful in luring their talented émigrés back home. Up to a third of R&D professionals from the developing world are believed to reside in the OECD area. While there are often media reports of successful Indian entrepreneurs in the United States who establish branches or even firms in India only a small number actually return. In 2000, it was estimated that some 1,500 highly qualified Indians returned from the United States, although more than 30 times that number depart each year.

The relative success of some countries in fostering return migration has been attributed to the opening up of their economies and policies to foster domestic investments in innovation and R&D. Developing countries with. Some infrastructure in R&D, like India are more likely to attract the return of migrants, as well as money and business contacts. "Immigrant entrepreneur networks" can also help home countries capture benefits and know-how from emigrants overseas, Indian professionals in the US have been the primary drivers of knowledge and capital flows to India. The Indian government has contributed to the emergence of these private networks through legislative -and tax rules that encourage remittances and investment from Indians abroad.

Governments can do quite a lot to address the causes of brain drain. Science and technology policies are key in this regard. Developing centres of excellence for scientific research and framing conditions for innovation and high tech entrepreneurship can make a country attractive to highly skilled workers, both from within the country and from outside. The task is not easy and it takes time; India's investment in human resources in science and technology and own R&I) capabilities dates from the 1950s.

The risk of a brain drain is real. Yet countries can create opportunities for research, innovation and entrepreneurship at home and stimulate a return flow of migrants and capital, as well as win access to international innovation networks. With the right mix of policies and sustained international co-operation, several countries could, as one Indian official pointed out, see the "brain drain" be transformed into a "brain bank".

CET PAPER 2011

Directions (Qs. 1 to 6): Read title following passage to answer the given questions based on it.

Managing urban development to keep pace with internal migration is a major challenge for India. As more people shift from agriculture to industry and services, cities are faced with a massive influx of migrants. Given limited capacities, urban infrastructure is bursting at the seams. World Bank projections show urban centres accounting for 40% of India's population by 2030 and crossing 50% by 2040-50. Given our traditional lacklustre attitude towards urban development-thanks to a political bias in favour of rural India-our cities are looking at bleak futures unless we tackle the issue now.

It is in the backdrop that the Delhi-Mumbai Industrial Corridor (DMIC) project to build new futuristic cities assumes significance. Expansion of existing urban metropolises is insufficient to deal with demand. By 2020, there will be a shortfall of 30 million urban dwelling units, 200 million water connections and 160 GW of power. In many cases, such as Delhi and Kolkata, expansion is simply not possible due to constraints on land. Short of Baron Haussmann's forcible renovation of Paris in the 19th century to decongest the French capital, building new cities from scratch is the best way to quickly create urban infrastructure.

Based on model urban cities such as Suzhou in China and Songdo in South Korea, the DMIC project envisages a total of 24 'smart cities' spanning six states. On completion, they will boast of state-of-the-art infrastructure with centrally integrated civic services such as water, power and sewage disposal. The lesson from the Delhi experience is that a multiplicity of authorities only leads to confusion in urban development. A central local body that oversees all services will be far more efficient in coordinating public works and repair. An integrated, accessible public transport system is the foundation of smart cities and a much-needed antidote to the chaos that the burgeoning number of private vehicles is creating in urban India. This entails creating multiple transportation options that smoothly feed into each other. Energy efficiency and clean technology must be the watchwords.

All of these will only be possible if there is sufficient devolution of power in favour of strong city governments. Whether it is New York, London or Tokyo, great cities have empowered local councils to manage affairs of development. Mumbai is a classic example of a city where infrastructure woes are directly linked to the absence of an effective local government besides negligence of state authorities. New cities must be provided with strong mayoral institutions to avoid a similar fate. For inclusive growth, we need new cities not just along the DMIC corridor but in the rest of the country as well.

If you are devastatingly underwhelmed by that announcement coming especially as it does from a place that, only months ago, was talking about finding the 'God particle' by smashing sub-atomic particles in subterranean Geneva-you are not alone. It is not the kind of invention that historian of ideas, Thomas Kuhn, would have counted as 'paradigm-shifting'. The fact that your local electrical appliance shop has one of the five numbered figures which does not fit into the series. The number of that figure is the answer.

Study the following question ..

Now solve the following questions.

Directions (Qs 1 to 10) : In each of the questions given below which one of the five answer figures on the right should come after the problem figures On the left, if the sequence were continued?

Directions (Qs. 11 to 17): In each of these questions there are two sets of figures. The figures of the left are Problem Figures (jar figures and one question-marked space) and those on the right are Answer figures indicated by number (a), (b), (c), (d) and (e). A series is established if one of the five Answer Figures is placed at the "question-marked space". Question Figures form a series if they change from left to right according to some rules. The number of the Answer Figure which should be placed in the question-marked space is the answer. All the five figures i.e. four Problem Figures and one Answer Figure placed in the question-marked space should be considered as forming the series.

Study the following questions

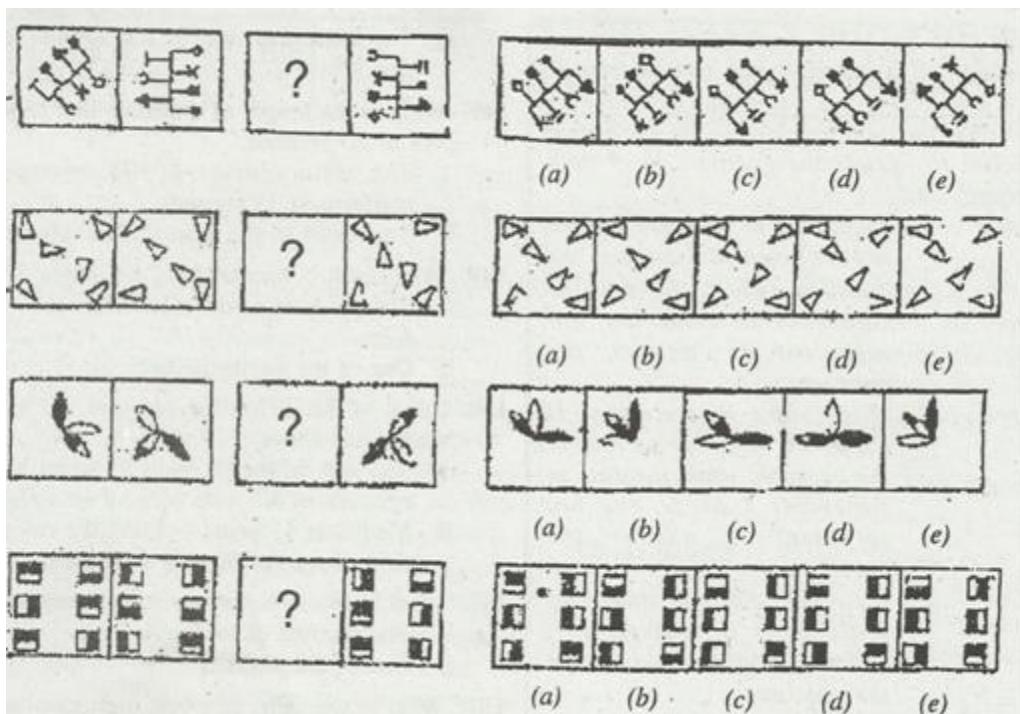

If we place the Answer Figure (d) in the question 'marked space' it makes a series which indicate that one vertical line is added in each figure. So the answer is (d). Note that if we go by only one aspect of 'number of lines' Answer Figure (c) may also fit in. So you have to consider all different aspects.

Now solve the following questions.

Out of these five, four have relationship similar to that in the unnumbered pair, Only one pair of figures does not have similar relationship. Select that pair of figures which does not have a similar relationship to that in the unnumbered pair. Number of that pair is your answer.

Study the following question.

In this question, element II or unnumbered pair of figures is related to element I in a certain way. Element II has one side more than the element I. The numbered figures A, B, C and E have a similar relationship i.e. element II of each figure has one side more than the element I. However, elements in figure of No. D do not have such a relationship. Therefore, D is the answer.
